Beneficiary and payee details

Warning: Check your payment details carefully. The Bank does not check that the payee's name matches the BSB/account number/account name of the intended payee. If an incorrect account number is provided your payment may be credited into the wrong account despite the account not being in the name of the intended payee. It may not be possible to recover your money from an unintended recipient.

Do you know who you are sending money to?

Unfortunately, there are people who will try and trick you into transferring money to them. To help protect yourself you should be absolutely certain that you know who the payee/beneficiary is and what the transfer will be used for.

These people may pretend to be our staff, an Australian government department, or another organisation, it may be a romantic partner you met online and may or may not have met in person, or a friend, family member or carer that is not acting in your best interest.

Examples of when you should exercise caution:

- For invoices received through email (always confirm through their website or white pages they are correct).
- To or on behalf of an individual you have only met online and not in person (for example, through an online dating app).
- For an emergency situation you have not confirmed.
- For a payment into an investment scheme.
- For a charity donation.
- To resolve an immigration, visa or tax matter.
- To claim lottery or prize winnings overseas.
- To pay for something in response to a telemarketing call, SMS or email.
